

ABSTRACT

A video image capturing and displaying method includes capturing a video image having a time series of image frames; compressing the video image with each sequential line of the image frame as the basic compression unit; decompressing the compressed video image in the buffer; and displaying the decompressed video image.